Power Measurement – and the Lamp of Love

The purpose of this document is to define the need for teamwork and power measurement.

The Spirit is a Lamp

The Spirit is a lamp to our heart. The Holy Spirit illuminates our heart. He shows us what we love. As we pray in the Spirit, we build up the power of that lamp. As we pray in the Spirit, we can see what is on our heart. As we pray in the Spirit, we can know what we love.

God is Love

God is love. He communicates in spirit. He communicates through the heart. He communicates through love. He refines our heart. He improves our love. God is love.

We come to Him with Love

We come to him with love. We give him what is on our heart. Our offering to him is what we know of our love. Knowing we will lose it, each day we sacrifice our heart to his refining fire. We give him our love in exchange for his love. We come to him with love.

We come to Other People with Love

Our contact with God is limited. Other people have contact with God that we need. We have contact with God that other people need. We were designed to love as the Body of Christ. We were designed for a place in the Body. Our contact with God is limited by design. Our contact with God is limited to our place in the Body. The lamp of love shows us who we are. The lamp of love shows us the meaning of our specific life in the Body. The lamp of love shows us what we were designed to give. The lamp of love shows us what God will accept from us. The lamp of love shows us how our giving connects to the giving of others. We come to other people with what we have received from God. We come to other people with our limited contact. Other people have contact with God that we need. We have contact with God that other people need. We come to other people with love.

Teamwork

Before time began, God designed the Body of Christ. Each person has their own special access to that design. Each person has important access to God. It takes teamwork to share that access. It takes teamwork to fully communicate with God.

Power Measurement

We were designed to work together. God accepts only excellent, anointed giving from his design. To have our gifts accepted, we must share our access to his design. It takes measurement to share that knowledge. You could call it love measurement. You could call it faith measurement. I call it power measurement.
